The Seabury's Art Program

The Seabury's Recreation Department offers an ongoing art class for its residents, led by local artist, Lowry Reinauer. Ms. Reinauer instructs the residents in drawing, colored pencils, oil pastels and watercolor. The residents are engaged in a creative expression that provides a therapeutic process, builds self-esteem and memory recall. The program operates on the premise that each individual uses color, line and shape in a manner closely linked to his or her unique self. The creative process stimulates the temporal lobe of the brain and also induces the use of motor skills.
